PROGRAM DESIGNER

SUE'S DESIGNATIONS

Masters Degree in Human Development & Masters Degree in Counseling

Sue brings a powerful package of expertise to her lead facilitator role at the Institute for Health and Human Potential, which combines over 25 years of facilitation for Fortune 500 companies, roles in management and in sales, experience in program design and development, and mentoring. This includes being a past president of Eagle's Flight of America, an experiential learning design company.

As a facilitator, Sue is super practical – people know what to do after her facilitation. Her unique brand of facilitating combines common sense, academic knowledge, practical application, a passion for people, and a drive to create results. She has worked in almost every state in the U.S., as well as in Brazil, Korea, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, France, Spain, Ireland, Panama, Egypt and Bulgaria, Great Britain.

Sue did her undergraduate work in journalism at Arizona State University. She has two Masters degrees: one in Human Development from St. Mary's University, and the other in Counselling from Minnesota Graduate School of Theology.

She has worked with companies like Marriott, Wells Fargo, Disney, ESPN, Benjamin Moore, J Crew, Verizon, Rolls Royce, Allstate, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, and Collins Aerospace.

WHAT SUE'S CLIENTS SAY

This was one of the best classes I have ever taken in my professional career. Sue was amazing! She made the material interesting, sharing of ideas fun and beneficial and honestly made the whole thing look easy, which shows how great she is at her job. I would love to take another class that she would be leading.

Sue's energy and happiness really reflected her love of the content. Sue was very encouraging regarding people's comments, and created a very safe learning environment.

Sue was wonderful, very engaging, kept the perfect pace, told the right amount of personal stories, everything was great, she was awesome!
